

Image courtesy of Naypong at FreeDigitalPhotos.net

Field Leadership for Construction

Thursday May 25—Friday May 26, 2017

8:00 am—4:30 pm

What Will You Learn:

Traditional safety training lessons may be overridden by old behaviors unless they become embedded habits. Workers can be trained to recognize team cues and analyze triggers to automatic behaviors for safe and unsafe habits alike. This training encourages workers to identify safe cues and be open to new habits that improve their lives.

Participants will engage in active scenario based learning as they practice adapting their leadership style to increase effectiveness of his/her communication styles and how to teach this same technique to others. Participants will practice proven techniques in communicating, motivating and inspiring a diverse workforce to achieve the desired balance of worker health and safety, quality work, and production outcomes.

Who Should Attend:

Foreman, Superintendents, Supervisors, Managers and Safety personnel that work in the construction industry.

Trainer:

Training will be conducted by Dr. John Dunsmoor of the Rocky Mountain Education Center, Red Rocks Community College, Lakewood, Colorado.

To Register:

To register for this NO COST training call 409-933-8162 or visit www.com.edu/gcsi to download the registration form.

At the completion of the course you will receive a certificate of completion.

